

■ Contemporary Style

This contemporary pool was built to work in harmony with the minimalist styling of the property. It features an infinity edge which creates the illusion of the pool having no edge when viewed from inside the house. Creative use of lighting in the overflow channel further enhances the pool by night.

■ Rock Pool

After travelling the world and swimming in many pools, the owners of this pool wanted a pool finish to resemble black 'volcanic rock' – this was created by mixing black and white marble chips finished with emerald green grouting. The pool features stainless steel fittings throughout and a counter current unit to provide exercise for the whole family along with underwater corner seats and shallow steps for the young children to paddle on.

■ Mirrored Image

The owners of this bespoke pool wanted to replicate the mirrored effect they had seen in a hotel pool whilst on holiday. Black mosaic tiles were used throughout to create a stunning mirrored effect which reflects the cutting edge design of the rear of the Victorian house.

■ Out With The Old

An existing 50 year old pool was removed before construction of this pool commenced. A simple design was required to ensure the pool blends in with its surroundings. The pool also features full length steps at one end, along with mini underwater lights and an under-coping safety cover.
